Specialized Stair & Rail

When you're dealing with custom staircases in high-end homes, you want to make sure that things get done right the first time. That's why Specialized Stair & Rail offers the kind of boutique craftsmanship that displays architectural integrity and quality in every custom staircase they build.

Celebrating twenty years servicing the custom home market, Specialized Stair & Rail owner Rene Dreger admits that their purpose is to create an exceptional staircase. "We strive to find customers who appreciate the extra effort and innovation that we provide. Our team is passionate and invested in creating unique staircases of a high standard."

Getting the details right is what matters as they build each component in-house. "We do things that other companies don't. If there is a question of whether it can be built, you can come to us," affirms Dreger.

Always on trend, Dreger notes a movement towards modern designs with clean lines that often feature mono-stringers with glass and stainless steel railings. Hosting a wide range of styles, Specialized Stair & Rail's experience affords them the expertise that allows a seamless transition of each client's vision into reality. "And because we always push the boundaries in design, our production of high-end staircases remains unmatched," shares Dreger.

Hosting an expanded facility that captures 15,000 square feet of production space that includes 1,200 square feet of show room features, their CNC equipment is further state-of-the-art. Their newly renovated show room offers an atmosphere conducive to design and selection, helping each to expand upon visions with confidence and ease. "We have the best technology and match that with old school craftsmanship," concludes Dreger.
